inflatable icons: diffusion-based interactive extrusion of ... - are based on a diffusion process taking place at the pixel level. in computer graphics diffusion and related operations are often used as technique to smooth [3] or to deform [2] 3d objects. to capture the notion of inflation we introduce the idea of a biased diffusion process. unlike most diffusion an autostereoscopic projector array optimized for 3d ... - diffusion, and projector densities, which led us to place the projectors in a 124cm curve with a radius of 60cm to maximize the depth of field. we also prototyped the display using a single pico-projector on a motion control arm and long-exposure photography [jurik et al. 2011] to simulate the 3d effect with real-world equipment. a multi-camera motion capture system for remote health ... - before video capture, the cameras are calibrated using the chessboard calibration pattern [3]. the calibration parameters are used for the 3d motion estimation at the receiver's side. after calibration, the object starts walking on the treadmill, and the motion videos are recorded by four depth estimation and depth enhancement by diffusion of ... - depth estimation and depth enhancement by diffusion of depth features nikolce stefanoski1, can bal1, manuel lang1,2, ... rently in development for compressed 3d video [3], which ... each view. however, if cameras capture the same scene from slightly different positions, which is the usual application scenario, there are dependencies between ... capturing nucleation at 4d atomic resolution - arxiv - we capture the structure and dynamics of the . 2 same nuclei undergoing growth, fluctuation, dissolution, merging and/or division, ... atom probe tomography 3, video and confocal microscopy 14- 6, molecular dynamics (md) and monte carlo simulations 17-2, and others1 ... by atomic diffusion between nanoparticles during annealing, which was ... lab 7: brownian motion - harvard university - lab 7: brownian motion i. ... (we'll learn why this is the case when we study the diffusion equation.) the mean of this gaussian is the average ... from this setup, logger pro can capture time-lapse video of brownian motion of particles suspended in solution on the microscope slide. 3. each microscope has an objective for 10x magnification ... approaches to real time ambisonic spatialization and sound ... - additional recordings consist of a marble being dropped into various objects, and cicadas captured in rome at the palatine hill. the role of the sound diffuser is intended integral three-dimensional television with video system ... - integral three-dimensional television with video ... is that when the image capture and display devices both ... convex lenses is placed in front of the diffusion screen to generate the 3d image. ...
